Building Organizational and Leadership Performance

Speakers:

Dionne Geiger, Executive Director, Florida Sterling Council

Gordon Klein, UU&PI Chief Financial Services Manager, City of Tallahassee

Organizations everywhere are looking for ways to effectively and efficiently meet their missions and achieve their visions. The National Malcolm Baldrige Criteria for Performance Excellence provides a framework to improve your organization's performance and get sustainable results. It is a model that helps organizations address a dynamic environment, focus on strategy-driven performance, achieve customer and workforce engagement, and improve governance and ethics, societal responsibilities, competitiveness, and long-term organizational sustainability. It offers you a comprehensive management approach that focuses on results in all areas, organizational and personal learning, and knowledge sharing. Applying these criteria builds leadership skills, and uncovers the leadership potential in staff.

This session will illustrate how, with the resources available from the Florida Sterling Council, you can use the criteria to improve overall performance and build your leadership bench.

Jeff Kern, Vice President, Sales and Relationship

PMA Financial Network, LLC

There many factors that impact a government's investments and treasury operations, especially given the new investment landscape as a result of the COVID-19 crisis. The core principles of an investment strategy remain—safety, liquidity and yield. It is crucial that Finance Officers fully keep up-to-date on market conditions, current events, and investment products to ensure access to liquidity while maintaining longer-term investment objectives. State and Local revenue and interest projections will be under stress along with uncertainties of how related pandemic expenditures may impact budgets. Many local governments and business partners may be working remotely, how do we maintain proper authorizations and communications during this challenging time in our history.
